Cell Membranes: Introduction | SparkNotes

The cell membrane is what defines the cell and keeps its components separate from outside cells or organisms. The cell membrane is composed of a double layer of fat cells called a lipid bilayer in which membrane proteins are embedded. The structure of the lipid bilayer prevents the free passage of most molecules into and out of the cell. We will begin our discussion of the structure of the cell membrane by discussing the structure and properties of the lipid bilayer. We will then go on to ...
